Eight Parts of Speech

Adjective	describes a noun or pronoun
Adverb	describes a verb, adjective, or another adverb
Conjunction	connects words or phrases in a sentence
Interjection	a word or short phrase that shows emotion
Noun	names a person, place, thing, or idea
Preposition	relates a noun or pronoun to other words in a sentence
Pronoun	takes the place of a noun
Verb	shows action or a state of being

Parts of Speech - Nouns

A common noun names a person, place, thing, or idea. A proper noun names a particular person, place, thing, or idea. A proper noun begins with a capital letter. Nouns may be singular or plural.

Some of the Functions of Nouns

Subject	The subject is whom or what the sentence is about. Example: Tom likes to play piano.
Direct Object	A direct object receives the action of the verb. Example: Tom plays the piano . To find the DO, ask: Tom plays what?
Object of a Preposition	The object of a preposition comes at the end of a prepositional phrase. Example: Mr. Gore plays in an orchestra .
Predicate Nominative (Predicate Noun)	A predicate nominative renames the subject. Example: Tom and Mr. Gore are musicians .
Possessive	A possessive noun shows ownership and usually modifies another noun. Examples: Mr. Gore's class uses Tom's piano.
Collective	A collective noun names a group (Ex. team, family, herd, flock). A collective noun is singular and takes a singular verb. Example: The family enjoys camping.

Parts of Speech - Pronouns

A pronoun takes the place of a noun. The noun that the pronoun is referring to is called the antecedent. The antecedent is in the same sentence or a recent, earlier sentence; occasionally, an antecedent is not specifically named. It is implied, or "understood."

Examples: The puppy is in its pen.
("its pen" refers to the puppy's pen, so "puppy" is the antecedent.)
It has been raining all day.
(There is no clear antecedent, but we know "it" refers to the weather.)

Parts of Speech - Verbs

Action	Shows an action Example: A stunt man performs dangerous feats. The symphony performs every Sunday.
Being	Does not show action; shows a state of being Examples: is, are, was, were, be, am, being, been
Linking	Links the subject with a noun or adjective Examples: appear, become, feel, seem, smell, taste, sounds, and all forms of be
Helping (Auxiliary)	Pairs with a main verb to form a verb phrase Examples: is, are, was, were, be, am, being, been, might, could, should, would, can, do, does, did, may, must, will, shall, have, has, had

Verb Tense

Verb tense tells the time when the action or condition of the verb occurs.

Simple Verb Tenses

Present	The action is occurring now or is unchanging.	The house is new. (singular subject) The boys swim. (plural)
Past	The action was started and completed in the past.	The clock stopped. (singular subject) The buses ran. (plural)
Future	The action will not start until the future.	The snow will fall. (singular subject) The lakes will freeze. (plural)

Perfect Verb Tenses

A perfect verb tense or perfect verb form describes a completed action. All perfect verb forms use past tense verbs with helping verbs.

Present (has / have)	Action is ongoing or indefinite.	Nick has finished two of his assignments. We have played soccer for five years.
Past (had)	Shows which event in the past happened first.	She had asked for help before she began working. The children had napped before coming down to dinner.
Future (will have)	Action will occur in the future before some other action.	I will have completed my chores by bedtime. They will have learned the routines by next year.

Progressive Verb Tenses

A main verb that ends in -ing works with a helping verb to form the progressive tense. The verb phrase shows action that is ongoing in present, past, or future.

Present	We are talking.	Past	We were talking.	Future	We will be talking.
----------------	-----------------	-------------	------------------	---------------	---------------------

forbid	forbade	forbidden	sweep	swept	swept get	got	gotten	teach	taught	taught hide	hid	hidden	understand	understood	understood
hear	heard	heard	wind	wound	wound

Parts of Speech - Conjunctions

Conjunctions connect similar words, clauses, or phrases within a sentence.

Coordinating Join two equal elements or two complete thoughts
Use the acronym FANBOYS (for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so)
Example: We swam in the ocean and roasted hot dogs over the fire.

Correlative Work in pairs to join words either/or neither/nor both/and whether/or as/as if/then Example: Neither Jim nor his father cared for mushrooms.

Subordinating Join a complete thought with an incomplete thought
See chart below.
Example: Finish your homework before you go outside.

Examples of Subordinating Conjunctions
after	before	if	though	whenever although	even if	since	unless	while as	than	until	wherever	because
how	that	even though	when	till

Adverbs That Tell To What Extent

almost	completely	permanently	really	too
also	extremely	quite	scarcely	vaguely barely	more	rather	thoroughly	very

Parts of Speech - Adjectives

Adjectives modify nouns or pronouns. Adjectives tell how many, what color, how big, how small, what kind, and so on. Example: He was a tall man.

A proper adjective begins with a capital letter. Example: Siberian Husky

An article is a special type of adjective (a, an, the). Example: Throw Jack the ball.

Parts of Speech - Prepositions

Prepositions relate nouns or pronouns to other words in the sentence. A prepositional phrase begins with a preposition and ends with a noun or a pronoun.

Some Common Prepositions

about	around	by	into	out	under above	before	down	near	outside	underneath across	behind	during	nearby	over	until

Sentences

Parts of a Sentence

Subject	The simple subject has no modifier. Every sentence has a simple subject. The complete subject includes the simple subject plus all of the modifiers that go with it. Example: A few ravenous teenagers devoured the pizza. Teenagers is the simple subject. A few ravenous teenagers is the complete subject.
Predicate	The simple predicate is the verb. The complete predicate is the verb plus the other words that say something about the subject – what the subject is or does. Example: The tired children climbed slowly upstairs. Climbed is the simple predicate, or verb. Climbed slowly upstairs is the complete predicate.

The Four Sentence Types

Type	Other Name	Punctuation	Example:
declarative	statement	period	This is a sentence.
interrogative	question	question mark	Is this correct?
imperative	command/request	period	Please open the door.
exclamatory	exclamation	exclamation point	This is awesome!

Features of a sentence

1. begins with a capital letter
2. ends with punctuation/end mark
3. conveys a complete thought

Fragments

A fragment is not a sentence because it does not express a complete thought. A fragment is missing either a subject or a verb.

Examples: The book that I read. (missing a verb)
Running down the street. (missing a subject)

Run-on Sentences

A run-on is two or more complete thoughts that run together without proper punctuation or conjunctions.

Examples:

Incorrect: Lori wants to be a biologist she likes nature but she does not enjoy being outside if it is cold she is more of a warm weather person some biologists must do research outside so maybe Lori should study something else instead.

Correct: Lori wants to be a biologist because she likes nature. However, Lori does not enjoy being outside if it is cold. She is more of a warm weather person, and some biologists must do research outside. Maybe Lori should study something else instead.

Punctuation (continued)

Commas and Quotation Marks in Dialogue

Put quotation marks before and after the actual words that someone says. Quotation marks are like a frame around spoken words. Keep the end mark inside the quotes.

Example: She said, "We need to go now."

Do not capitalize words in the middle of a quote unless they are proper nouns or the first word in a sentence.

Example: "That intersection is dangerous!" warned Betsy. "So hold your sister's hand."

Use a comma or end mark before and after a quote.

Examples: "It's starting to rain!" Marcy exclaimed. Mickey replied, "Don't worry, you won't melt."

Do not use a comma at the end of a sentence within quotes if there is another end mark.

Example: "Grandma's here!" exclaimed Sasha.

Capitalization Rules

Capitalize the first word in a sentence, the pronoun I, proper nouns, and proper adjectives.

Capitalize the day and the month when writing dates.

Capitalize holidays, product names, and geographic names. These are all proper nouns.

Capitalize the first word and the important words in titles.

Example: From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler

Other Types of Punctuation

Punctuating Titles

Show the title of a book, movie, play, television show, or website by using italics or by underlining it.

Examples:	Sarah, Plain and Tall	or	Sarah, Plain and Tall
	Peter and the Wolf	or	Peter and the Wolf
	Sesame Street	or	Sesame Street
	www.Toys.com	or	www.Toys.com

Put quotation marks around the title of a short work, such as a poem, song, short story, or book chapter.

Examples: "Dreams" is a poem by Langston Hughes.

We sang "Jingle Bells" and many other winter songs.

"The Monkey's Paw" is a scary short story by W.W. Jacobs.

In My Side of the Mountain, by Jean Craighead George, one of the chapters is called "The Old, Old Tree."

Figurative Language

A simile is a way to describe something using a comparison. A simile compares two things using the words like or as.

Example: The baby is as playful as a kitten. (A baby is compared to a kitten.)

A metaphor compares two things but does not use like or as. It uses a form of the verb be.

Example: Joey is a magnet for bad luck. (He attracts bad luck.)

Personification gives human features to something non-human.

Example: A battalion of sunflowers stood at attention, facing the commanding officer. (On a farm, sunflowers grow in rows; they are rigid, like soldiers in formation, and the flower always turns toward the sun.)

An idiom is a phrase whose meaning can't be understood from the literal meaning of the words.

Example: This article is way over my head. This phrase could mean something is taller than I am. But when over my head is an idiom, it means something is too complicated to be understood.

Examples: We bought a used car, and it's a real lemon!
(refers to a car that has many problems or doesn't run)
At first I was angry, but I got over it.
(refers to letting go of something that was upsetting)

An adage, or proverb, is a wise saying that most people think is true. It may give advice.

Example: All that glitters is not gold. This saying warns us that something might seem valuable, but it really is not valuable.

Spelling Rules

Adding Prefixes

When adding a prefix or joining two words, do not change the spelling of the base word.

Adding Suffixes that Begin with a Consonant

When adding a suffix that begins with a consonant, do not change the spelling of the base word.

Examples: joy + ful → joyful wool + ly → woolly agree + ment → agreement, pain + ful → painful sincere + ly → sincerely govern + ment → government

Common Exceptions: argue + ment → argument true + ly → truly nine + th → ninth, judge + ment → judgment due + ly → duly awe + ful → awful

Adding Suffixes that Begin with a Vowel

When a word ends in a vowel + y, add a suffix without changing the spelling of the base word.

Examples: employ + er → employer play + ing → playing gray + est → grayest enjoy + ment → enjoyment

When a word ends in silent -e, usually drop the -e to add a suffix that begins with a vowel.

Examples: love + able → lovable

Help Pages

Adding Suffixes that Begin with a Vowel (continued)

When a word ends in a consonant + y pattern, usually change the y to i when adding a suffix.

Examples: try + ed → tried (ends in consonant + y; change the y to i)

Do not change the y to i if the word ends in a vowel + y pattern or if the suffix is ing.

Examples: destroy + ed → destroyed (vowel + y)
hurry + ing → hurrying (consonant + ing)

When a one-syllable word ends in the cvc pattern (consonant - vowel - consonant), usually double the final consonant to add a suffix that begins with a vowel.

Examples: ship + ing → shipping (suffix begins with a vowel) ship + ment → shipment (suffix begins with a consonant) nut + y → nutty (suffix is y)

When a one-syllable word ends in the cvc pattern, and the final consonant is s, x or w, do not double the final consonant.

Examples: mix + ing → mixing box + ed → boxed slow + er → slower

When a multi-syllable word ends in the cvc pattern, and the accent is on the last syllable, usually double the final consonant to add a suffix that begins with a vowel.

Example: commit + ing → committing (suffix begins with a vowel)

Common Exception: prefer + able → preferable

Making Plurals

When a word ends in s, x, z, ch, or sh add -es to make the plural

Examples: tax → taxes; wish → wishes

Many words that end in f or fe, change the f or fe to -ves.

Examples: life → lives; thief → thieves

Other words that end in f or ff do not follow the rule for making plurals.

Examples: cliff → cliffs; belief → beliefs

For words that end in a consonant + o, add an s to make the plural.

Example: piano → pianos

Other words that end in a consonant + o, add an es to make the plural.

Example: tomato → tomatoes

Irregular plural nouns have a completely different spelling in the plural form.

Common irregular plural nouns
child	children	man	men	ox	oxen	tooth	teeth
louse	lice	mouse	mice	person	people	woman	women

Place i before e, except after c, or when sounded like /ā/ as in neighbor and weigh.

Examples: mischief receive eight

There are many exceptions to spelling rules. If you are not sure of the spelling of a word, use a dictionary to check.
